

DOUGHERTY IS NOW LOCKED UP

Indictments Pile Up Against The Teacher-Banker.Financier At Alarming Rate.

INSANITY MAY BE THE DEFENSE

Attorneys For Mr. Dougherty Refuse To Discuss Any Mat- ters Relating To Their Client Or His Actions.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 10.—Newton C. Dougherty, former superintendent of schools and bank president, Monday night occupied a prison cell. He did not try to give bond on the eighty-four indictments, which were returned by the grand jury against him Monday afternoon, but as soon as he learned that the jury had made a report and that it had indicted him he entered a carriage and drove directly to the county jail, where he gave himself up to Senator Potter. He was placed at once in the cell formerly occupied by Olin Bots, the wife murderer.

Shortly after 3 o'clock Monday afternoon the grand jury reported eighty-four indictments against Dougherty in addition to the thirteen already found. Forty-five of these are for forgery, each containing eight counts; thirty-nine are for embezzlement, each containing six counts. The amounts involved are from $14.40 to $600. Bonds for the indictments were fixed by Judge Worthington at approximately $40,000.

At a special meeting of the school board it was announced that the board would issue attachments against all of Dougherty's real estate in the city. This amounts to about $50,000.

Big Crowd Hears Report.

Never before in the history of Peoria county has a grand jury made a report before so large an audience. The court room was filled with lawyers and citizens when Judge Worthington took his seat. On question of Judge Worthington Foreman Grant Miner presented a stack of true bills six inches thick.

"Holds the grand jury any more business to transact?" asked the court.

"Yes, sir," replied Foreman Miller, and the jury was ordered to retire for further consultation.

It was expected that a capias would be issued and a member of the sheriff's force sent to arrest Dougherty, but Attorney Well addressed the court and announced that Mr. Dougherty would appear of his own accord within one hour.

Many members of the grand jury were at work Monday morning sorting, canceled checks, drafts, etc., of which eight grain sacks, crammed full, were brought from the Peoria National bank and stored in the vault of the state's attorney. Mr. Bailey was in the grand jury room during the morning. It was noon when he came out.

"There is absolutely nothing new; no new developments," he said.

Confident of Conviction.

"The evidence is prima facie, the state will force a trial at the November term of the circuit court and the defendant must go to the penitentiary convicted of forgery," is the statement of State's Attorney Scholes.

"We have not seen the indictments, we have talked very little with our client and we have not decided upon the line of defense. Mr. Dougherty tells us that he can explain everything, and we have advised him to say nothing for the present. Insanity? Well, I have nothing to say on that matter now. Certainly we have not as yet decided to make a defense along those lines, but it is true that Mr. Dougherty has acted very strangely under the recent nervous strains," was all that could be learned from Attorney Joseph Well, who, with Judge Irwin and Frank Quinn, has been retained in the case.

William Jack of the firm of Irwin, Jack & Tischer, had nothing to say regarding the line to be pursued by the defense.

"Have not received the indictments and will not be able to make a statement until late in the week," said Mr. Jack.

It is believed generally that when the case comes to trial Dougherty's attorneys will content themselves with attempting to establish a claim of insanity.

Uncle Sam—Certain indications would lead me to venture the statement that a municipal campaign is starting in New York!

By special invitation of Secretary Shaw the bankers will have unusual opportunities to view the workings of the Treasury Department.

INSURANCE MEN TELL INSIDE FACTS

Explain How the Money for Different
Funds is Distributed Around.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]

New York, Oct. 10.—The insurance investigation was resumed this morning. Robert Oliphant, a trustee of the Mutual, was a witness. He said all the corporations maintained a "confidential legal fund." He said he had authority as chairman to draw money on his own vouchers for legal expenses and said he did not know why the money was unpaid the general solicitor for disbursements. Oliphant said eight payments of twenty-five thousand dollars each had been made him as chairman for "legal expenses." He said that he turned this amount over to other officers and did not consider it his duty to know the specific uses. He also said he supposed there was some contribution to republican campaign fund because he had not heard of a contribution coming from any other fund. Oliphant was asked: "If a vice president comes to you and asks for money, saying it is all right, do you give it without knowing anything about what it is for?" He replied: "We have to." Robert A. Granville, vice president of the Mutual, testified regarding the contributions. The committee was surprised this morning to hear George W. Perkins had sailed for Europe.

Richard A. McCurdy, president of the Mutual, was called to testify this afternoon.

Granville said he never had heard of the campaign contributions. He was unacquainted with Hamilton and could not recall whether he conferred with any New York Life representatives regarding legislation anywhere in this country. He said Thumpe had looked after the legislation, but he could not recall having given him any instructions. Gillette, another vice president, was called. He was shown vouchers for twenty-five thousand dollars, each bearing his signature. He said they were for "legal expenses." Hughes asked him: "What are legal expenses?" Gillette said the general solicitor told him the money would be used for "legal expenses." Hughes persisted and Gillette said he was not told the specific purpose. Gillette's attention was called to the fact that the "legal expenses" of the Mutual last year were two hundred thousand dollars more than the New York Life or Equitable, vaguely indicating he thought it was a matter for the general solicitor.

ASPHALT PAVEMENT IS BEING PUT DOWN

At Last the Madison Streets Are Being Placed in Some Sort of Shape Again.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 10.—Madison is getting an asphalt pavement around the capitol park. Work which has been attempted several times by the common council and always tied up by objecting property-holders is now in progress, all as the result of the "order" to the capitol building bill passed by the last legislature, providing that none of the money appropriated for the new building should be available until the completion of the asphalt pavement. The Vilas and Brown estates considered fighting the present work, but public sentiment was too strong for them to face, as delay in the pavement until another session of the legislature seemed to mean the sure removal of the capitol to another city. And so, while the steam rollers work on the foundation of the pavement, the objectors look on and say nothing. It is said they will attempt to escape payment of the assessment for the improvement, but any action in that regard will be taken after the pavement is completed and the capitol appropriation released.

The First National Bank of Omaha has increased its capital stock and absorbed the Citizens' bank.

DEMONSTRATION IN BUDAPEST TONIGHT

Anniversary of Execution of Hungarian Premier by Austrians
Back in 1849.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Budapest, Oct. 10.—Parliament, which was prorogued September 15th to enable the coalition parties to submit a program to the King-Emperor, reassembled today. Both the coalition and Socialist parties have arranged for a torchlight procession this evening, the anniversary of the execution of Count Louis Batthyany, who was premier of Hungary in 1849, and who was arrested and executed by the Austrians the following year. It is expected that 100,000 workingmen will take part in the demonstration.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]

Washington, Oct. 10.—"The woman in blue," Mrs. Lucy G. Lee of Massachusetts, who persisted in trying to see the President at Oyster Bay last summer, was arrested at White House today and is in jail pending an investigation as to her mental condition.

The late Duke Clarence of England was called "Collars and Cuffs," also "Lemonade and Claret." Lord Ribblesdale was spoken of as "Old Rhu-barb," and the hereditary princess of Roumania is even now mentioned as "Missie."

WABASH FIGHT IS VERY LIVELY

Ramsay Announces His Position As Regards The Voting Of Proxies Today.

WILL NOW BE A DIRECTOR HIMSELF

Legal Troubles Are Promised For The Board Of Direc- tors By His Attorneys At The Session This Morning.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]

Toledo, Oct. 10.—The Wabash meeting was called to order at nine o'clock and ex-Pros. Ramsay formally protested against Gould as chairman on the grounds he also acts as chairman of the Missouri Pacific board. A recess to permit the bondholders to caucus was taken.

NEW MOVE

The bondholders announced they would take advantage of the privilege accorded by law to take six directors, allowing the stockholders six. A roll call of stockholders was called off by who held proxies. Ramsay protested as fast as the proxies were announced. The protests were made without comment.

ANNOUNCE FIGHT

Ramsay's attorneys announced a fight in the preliminary to contest in courts to oust the board of directors and air the internal affairs of the company. Gould anticipates a long battle.

TO CAST VOTES

Ramsay announced he would use the cumulative system of voting the proxies. As a stockholder, he would vote one-sixth of the stock for himself, assuring himself a place on the board of directors.

STUDENTS FOUGHT TO SAVE THE COLLEGE BUILDINGS

The Buildings At The University Of Califor- nia Were In Danger From A Prairie Fire.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 10.—President Benjamin Ide Wheeler Monday suspended all work at the University of California, organized a fire fighting brigade of more than 2,000 students, and led the attack on a bush and grass fire which for several hours threatened to destroy the outlying university buildings as well as the Greek theater. The flames rushed down the canons at the back of the university grounds. The hose brigade and the students extinguished the fire with wet sacks.

When the hurry call was sounded at 11 o'clock the students were drilling on the campus. The president at once called off all work for the day and the students, in company formation, were marched at a double quick to the scene, each provided with a wet gunnysack. The president stationed himself near the dairy barn and directed operations.

Overcome by the Heat.

Squads of students fell upon the flames with their wet sacks, but many were overpowered by the heat and were carried off the field. The Berkeley fire brigade kept streams playing on the roof of the barn, which several times took fire.

Prentiss S. Grey, president of the students; Ray Gabbert, editor of the and Roy Elliott, a football player, were cut off by a circle of fire and compelled to wrap themselves in sacks to save their lives. Others, including many professors, were scorched and burned.

The fire fighting was then directed to the side of Charter hill, to prevent the flames from reaching the grove of eucalyptus trees that surrounded the Greek theater. For a time it seemed as if the fire would win, but the flames were stopped within fifty feet of the fence that surrounds the theater.

Yet Announces Victory.

After the fire on the edge of the campus had been subdued, President Wheeler led the students to the attack on the flames threatening adjoining private property, and a dairy and several houses were saved.

When the students finally controlled the flames that threatened the university property they gave their college cries, in which the president and other faculty members joined. Then all combined in the saving of private property.

The willingness of the students to help save adjoining property was praised highly by the Berkeley people, who would have suffered great loss had not the students come to their aid.

NEW YORK GOES BASE BALL CRAZY TODAY

People Start for the Ball Grounds Long Before Noon, To Be Sure of Admission.

New York, Oct. 10.—The second day of the national baseball championship series was cooler than yesterday in Philadelphia, and with clear skies the crowds started for the park this morning to avoid being turned away. It is probable the batteries will be; New York, McGinnity and Bresnahan; Philadelphia, Bender and Schreck.

The betting today was ten to eight and ten to seven on the Giants; and ten to nine on the series.

STATE NOTES

Joseph Britz, aged 60, a pioneer of Racine county, was fatally injured Monday afternoon, falling under a team of horses, which trampled him. Water above the rapids dam in Root river is five feet lower than its usual stage and naphtha yachts are unable to navigate the stream.

Members of the Lincoln club at Racine have received word from District Attorney McGovern of Milwaukee that he will deliver an address before the club Thursday night.

The cornerstone of the new $15,000 school in the process of construction on the Oneida Indian reservation will be laid Oct. 11. Bishop Gratton of Fond du Lac will conduct the ceremony.

The Wisconsin supreme court has adjourned to 10 a. m. on Oct. 24, when it will hand down opinions in cases previously argued, and take up for argument cases Nos. 61 to 97, inclusive, except Nos. 62, 84, 85 and 90.

A trust at the county jail at West Bend Sunday night robbed the sheriff of $120 and escaped. The man had finished a term for robbery of a summer resort and then was employed by the sheriff as an all-around helper.

Miss Anna Inn, an Wisconsin and Michigan road's new resort on Holmes island, near Marinette, was opened on Monday.

Rabbinical Legend on Sneezing.

A rabbinical legend declares that prior to the days of the patriarchs no man sneezed more than once, for the sufficient reason that the shock was invariably fatal, but that at Jacob's intercession with the Almighty this Divine provision was abrogated, but only on condition that all men should thenceforth employ fit words of congratulation on the sneezer's happy deliverance from death.

TO PLAY MILTON JUNCT. ON FRIDAY

LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL ELEVEN TO MAKE SHORT TRIP.

EVANSVILLE VS. BRODHEAD

Announcement Made That Coach
King Will Retire Permanently at End of Season.

E. J. Hammon, manager-coach of the Janesville high school football team, has arranged for a game with Milton Junction high school to be played at the grounds of the latter club on Friday afternoon of this week. The locals expect a hard game despite the small size of the institution which will be represented against them for the same aggregation of players held the strong Fort Adkinson high school team down to a score of 7, while they succeeded in making a touchdown themselves. This result was doubtless a surprise to both the Fort and the Junction and a similar or worse surprise is possible this Friday. The Fort-Junction game was reported to the Milwaukee papers as a contest between the village eleven and the Fort's second, but local followers of the gridiron believe that the first team of the Fort was the contestant in that game and that the dispatch to Milwaukee was "doped" to keep up reputation.

To Play Deaf Mutes.
Another game has practically been scheduled. This is to be here on October 25, with the eleven from the state school for the deaf at Dela-ware and the peculiar methods of the deaf mutes promise to make it one of the most interesting of the season. Shered Heart college of Watertown and Carroll college of Waukesha have each asked for games with the local high school but nothing has been promised in either case and both will be refused unless at the end of the season no high school games are available. In the past few days there has been a falling off in the number of candidates for the team, fewer than formerly coming out to practice. This slight dearth of material is doubtless the result of a waning enthusiasm that can be revived and many of the "deserters" will likely be persuaded to return to practice or come back voluntarily. Among those who seem to have quit are a few of the men whose services in the line a week ago Saturday saved Janesville from defeat at the hands of Evansville.

Brodhead Overwhelmed.
Evansville, Oct. 10.—Evansville high school and Brodhead high school played football at the driving park in this city on Saturday. The game resulted in a victory for Evansville by a score of 34 to 0. The home eleven was heavier than the visiting eleven and only once did Brodhead threaten Evansville's goal. Palmer and Anderly started for Brodhead, while Durner was the gainer for Evansville. Reckord kicked some hard goals and made several quarter back runs. It was evident that Winters, Hubbard and Buckman were not in their usual physical conditions, although they played a fine game. The spectacular plays were a tackle made by Pearsall in the back field and the ninety-yard run made by Slightman in the last three minutes of the first half. Coach Ralph thinks that with this week's practice he can strengthen the only weak point of the team, the right side of the line. Evansville will probably play Clinton next Saturday at Clinton. The line-up was as follows:
Evansville (34) Brodhead (0)
Winters (Capt.) L. C. ... Anderly
Richardson, L. L. ... Gilbert
Pullen, C. ... Palmer
Bullard, R. ... Moore
Richardson, A. R. ... Howard
Slightman, F. R. ... Wearer
Buckman, F. B. ... Hartman, (Capt.)
Durner, R. H. ... Nousem
Hubbard, L. H. ... G. Hartman
Reckord, Pearsall, G. B. ... J. Nousem
Umpire—Wright; Referee—Parks;
Head linesman—Reilly.
Touchdowns—Durner, 2; Buckman, 2; Hubbard, 1; Slightman, 1.
Goals—Reckord, 3; Slightman, 1.

'08-'09 Track Meet.
Harold Myers, having been the only Freshman on the University of Wisconsin track team last season, will doubtless be the leader of the Sophomores in the '08-'09 track meet which will take place this Friday. This little athletic event is used as a sort of a fall tryout of the new track and field material in the university and is one of the competitions between the rival classes, the sophomores and freshmen. Myers has already commenced training for the autumn track events and the winter indoor meets.

King to Retire.
Madison, Wis., Oct. 10.—The announcement that it is the determination of Phil King, head coach of the University of Wisconsin football team, to permanently retire from the gridiron with the close of the present season created little or no surprise here, for it was known that King consented to return to the game after the two years' experiment with the graduate coach system, only that he might in a measure redeem his reputation, which suffered by the misfortune of the season of 1902, the last of his regime of seven years here. His friends "put it up to him" that he could pull Wisconsin out of the dumps and show that he is the equal of Yost, Williams or Stagg, and he consented to try, although he maintained that the acceptance of a salary of $3,000 for the football coaching season was a financial sacrifice and that his business interests in Washington would suffer in his absence. An enthusiastic reception has been accorded the information that Mr. King would like to see "Eddie" Holt, assistant coach this year, be placed in full charge of the Badgers next season. This eventually seems conditioned only upon a satisfactory showing by Holt this season. This also seems assured, for Holt has had practical charge of the line men thus far this fall and has already developed a wonderfully strong defense, and with Bertie and Deering is contributing much to the ground-gaining department of the team. The material for the line has not been of the best, for Wisconsin does not boast of line men of over 200 pounds. Holt is exceedingly well liked here. He is modest, firm and shows that he knows the game and can teach it to others. He holds the utmost confidence of the student body, and the indications are that he will be the Wisconsin football specialist for a number of years if he desires.

WORKING HARD TO BE IN LINE FOR TRADE

Chicago & Northwestern Line Are Hard at Work Increasing Their Lines.

Illinois, Wisconsin, Northern Michigan, South Dakota, Wyoming—this is a large field for exploitation and development, and the plans of the North-Western Line include important development in all of these states. The first feature of these extensive plans is the construction of a line across Wyoming. This big commonwealth has a large area that is without railway facilities. The western terminus of the Chicago & North-Western line, in that state at present is Casper, the site of old Fort Casper on the North Platte River, and the extension which is now being built will carry the line directly across the central portion of Wyoming, stream Big Horn river, across the stream and through what is at present the Wind River Indian Reservation, opening up the beautiful Lander Valley, opening up thousands of square miles in the range country and furnishing railroad facilities to the Wind River Reservation, where one and one-half million acres of public lands will be thrown open to the homesteader by the Government next June.

Hardly less important is the new line across the western part of South Dakota, from Pierre, the state capital, to Rapid City on the eastern border, to Rapid City on the Black Hills. The Chicago & North-Western railway is the pioneer to the Black Hills district, and the present line into the hills was begun almost as soon as the Indians had sold the territory to the Government. The new line across Dakota will effect a junction with the old line at Rapid City and will give Pierre and the range country an impetus beyond anything that has ever been done for the region. Deadwood and Lead in the mining district, Hot Springs to the south, and Belle Fourche, the big cattle shipping point to the north of the hills, will thus secure added railway facilities that will bring St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth, the Lake Superior iron and copper country, and the hardwood district of Wisconsin and Northern Michigan in closer touch than they have ever been.

Entirely different from the prairies of Dakota and the range country of Wyoming is this hardwood district of Northern Wisconsin and the Michigan Peninsula. Here the tracks of the North-Western line join in close connection, the industrial centers, the iron and copper district of Lake Superior, the scores of lake ports all the way from Milwaukee to Duluth, and the great tracts of timber land that are awaiting development and are filling up rapidly with settlers. In this region the North-Western line is constructing several different branches, one northwest from Meeker, one from Manitowish on Lake Michigan, through Green Bay, another important lake port, north into the heart of the hardwood district; another link extending from Laona, Wis., to the Menominee river at Saunders, Mich., a branch line Green Bay to Gillett, etc. Some of these lines are already practically completed, all of them join older lines of the Chicago & North-Western System and each one promises to be an important factor in opening the country for unprecedented commercial growth.

Illinois and Southern Wisconsin are interested in this construction work in two ways: First, by reason of the heavy interest that the merchants and manufacturers of such cities as Chicago, Milwaukee and smaller centers of industry will feel in the widening and deepening of trade in the territory which is naturally tributary to them, and second: By reason of the building and expansion of facilities of the North-Western line for handling traffic. In this connection the work now being done between Chicago and Milwaukee forms one of the most interesting pieces of railway work at present under way in the United States. The two cities are about 80 miles apart and the new road, which will soon be completed, provides for a complete equipped, electric block signal, four-track line of railway between them. Something of the magnitude of the traffic between the two points may be gathered from the fact that the North-Western line operates twenty-one fast passenger trains a day between them, a fast train for almost every hour in the day, and in addition there are scores of local trains to take care of the traffic for a practically continuous chain of towns and cities along the picturesque shore of Lake Michigan.

ASKS VILLAGES TO ORGANIZE A STOCK COMPANY; $25,000

Proposition That Western Shoe Company of Janesville Has Made to Milton and Milton Junction Business Men.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milton, October 10.—At the last meeting of the citizens' association, Messrs. Richardson and Nichols, proprietors of the Western Shoe company at Janesville, appeared before the association and presented a proposition to move their plant to a point midway between the two villages. The concern has, they stated, machinery, stock and funds to the amount of $21,000, and they ask as a condition of locating here that a stock company be organized and additional capital to the amount of $25,000 be raised by our citizens, which would give them a controlling interest in the corporation. The proposed concern would have capacity to manufacture two hundred pairs of shoes daily and the pay roll would amount to several hundred dollars per week, which would of course be largely expended in the two villages and would come from outside this locality. A committee representing both the Milton Junction and the Milton associations visited the factory last Friday to investigate the plant and upon their report depends, in a great measure, the financing of the project. It is stated by a member of this committee that they were favorably impressed by what they saw and learned of the enterprise during their visit and the report from that body is quite likely to be a favorable one. There will be a joint meeting of these two associations at Odd Fellows hall in this village this (Wednesday) evening, October 11, to hear the report of the committee. All interested are invited.

CAPT. DAVIDSON EXPECTS AN ADVANCE IN SUGAR QUOTATIONS

Is Indulging in No Worry Over Large Quantity of Commodity Now in Storage.

Capt. James Davidson of Bay City, who has been looking after his sugar factory interests here for a few days past, predicts an early advance in the price of sugar and is wasting no time in worry over the large quantity of that commodity which is still held in storage here. The factory will soon be running full force and the outlook for a prosperous season is most gratifying. J. G. Scobie of the town of La Prairie yesterday brought in a load of beets that tested 19.6 per cent, the tare being but 1.5 per cent. A load delivered by J. A. Decker weighed 3,480 pounds net, the largest single delivery of the season.

"Now, after trying but one treatment of your 'Pyramids,' I am free to tell all sufferers of this dreadful disease to try this medicine—the Pyramid Pile Cure. It will cure when all others fail. Sincerely yours, George Brauer, Schellburg, Pa."
Anyone suffering from the terrible torture, burning and itching of piles, will get instant relief from the treatment we send out free at our own expense, in plain sealed package, to everyone sending name and address. Surgical operation for piles is still a cruel, unnecessary and rarely a permanent success. Here you can get a treatment that is quick, easy to apply and inexpensive, and free from the publicity and humiliation you suffer by doctors' examination.
Pyramid Pile Cure is made in the form of "easy to use" suppositories. The coming of a cure is felt the moment you begin to use it, and your suffering ends.
Send your name and address at once to Pyramid Drug Co., Pyramit Building, Marshall, Mich., and get by return mail, the treatment we will send you free, in plain, sealed wrapper.
After seeing for yourself what it can do, you can get a regular, full-size package of Pyramid Pile Cure from any druggist at 50 cents each, or on receipt of price, we will mail you same ourselves if he should not have it.

Labor Notes

Trade unionists in Great Britain are collecting funds for a memorial to the late Lady Dike in recognition of her work in the cause of trade unionism.

Shanghai has a new cotton mill owned by a native Chinese company, with a mandarin as president. The mill has 40,000 spindles, and the cotton used is of Chinese growth. The help numbers 3,000, all women and children.

As compared with a year ago, employment in the majority of British trades during July showed some improvement, especially in the metal, cotton and woolen trades. In the building and iron trades there has been some decline.

The Australian Federal Parliament is discussing a Trade-Union Label bill. It is expected that the measure will become law.

The sum of $155,475 was distributed among 11,770 old age pensioners in New Zealand during the year ended June last.

The third annual convention of the Oregon State Federation of Labor, held at Portland, Oregon, recently, unanimously defeated a proposition for compulsory arbitration of labor disputes.

A resolution favoring the exclusion from the United States of Japanese and Korean laborers was adopted by the annual convention of the International Elevator Constructors' Union at Boston, Mass., recently.

The International Steam Engineers' Union, in annual convention at Toronto, Ont., recently passed a resolution urging the exclusion of Chinese, Japanese and Koreans from the United States and Canada. It was also resolved that undesirable emigrants from Europe should be excluded.

After an idleness of two months, most of the glass factories of Milwaukee, N. J., resumed operations last night on September 5, and in less than two weeks the 2,200 glassworkers of Milwaukee were almost all employed.

COWARDLY ATTACK ON THE CONDUCTOR

Rockton Thugs Held Door on Motor-man, and After Maiming Robt Whipple Threw Him Off Car.

Warrants have been issued at Rockton for the arrest of eight men who created a disturbance on one of the R. B. & J. interurban cars Saturday night. Conductor Robert Whipple was the object of the attack made by this band of thugs and suffered so severely that he has since been confined to his home in Beloit. When the Beloit car pulled out from the Line City, according to the interurban officials, this party boarded the car and paid their way to Rockton. They became boisterous, it is alleged, and the conductor asked them to be quiet. Several requests of this kind were made, and the result was a display of feeling on the part of the Rockton men who threatened, it is alleged, to "do the conductor up." Just as the car pulled into the station at Rockton, they started a "rough house" and threw the conductor to the floor, where he was badly maimed by some of the men, while others held the door of the vestibule closed so that Motor-man Campbell could not come to the assistance of the conductor. Two men named Ed. Ward and Ray North, who were also on the car, went to the assistance of Whipple, but they were both given a severe beating. Finally the men threw the conductor off the car and made their escape. The conductor immediately reported the case to the dispatcher in Beloit, and continued to Rockton with his car. Ward, who was badly bruised, was taken to his home in Rockton by friends. Whipple remained in Rockton and took out his car Sunday morning, but as soon as possible he found someone to relieve him and went to his home in the Line City. The warrants secured yesterday are for the following: Martin Dixon, John Dixon, James Harmon, John Butler, Jr., Ben Butler, Emil Hankle, Ed. Kuecher and Archie Fabrigson.

News for the Railroad Men.

New York Letter.
New York.—The return of Mr. Jas. J. Hill from the West is expected to be the signal for important announcements in connection with the great system which he heads. Mr. Hill's generalship is being constantly manifested by strategic advantages obtained for the Great Northern and Northern Pacific in the war for the control of the Northern Pacific coast business, as evidenced by building operation North and South of the State of Washington. Mr. Hill is due in New York between October 12th and 15th. The Hill-Harriman war has been a merry one, surpassed in interest only by the fierce Gould-Ramsey struggle for control of the Washington.

In the meantime rumors emanating from the far Northwest are to the effect that the Harriman interests intend retreating upon Hill lines for building the Portland and Seattle railroad to reach Portland by the water level route along the Columbia river by making new agreements by which the Oregon Railroad and Navigation company will admit the Canadian Pacific into the Columbia basin, through the Spokane gateway. This arrangement will be used as a weapon to combat the Northern Pacific and Great Northern, the Harriman's most aggressive competitors for northern traffic.

Railroads in southwestern Texas are beginning to feel the heavy pressure of the heavy movement of cotton and corn to market, and the operating departments are having difficulty in securing sufficient rolling stock to meet all demands without delay.

Officials of the Santa Fe, the San Pedro and Southern Pacific are considering the advisability of adopting a time table so that the public can read without the aid of a professor of hieroglyphics. It is known as a radical "time table," being the invention of G. Zealor, of Los Angeles, California.

JANESVILLE RESIDENTS RECALLING CHICAGO FIRE

Yesterday Was Thirty-Fourth Anniversary—Weather Was the Same
Then As This Fall.

Middle-aged residents of Janesville and those who are past their prime were yesterday recalling the great Chicago, fire for it was just 34 years ago that the conflagration occurred. The weather of that autumn, they say, was identical with the conditions that have been experienced this fall—a long dry spell with exceptionally high temperature for the season—and they state also that it was just such a day as yesterday that the flames were the fiercest.

STERILIZED BARBER SHOP.

A Famous Shop in the Carrollton Hotel, Baltimore, Maryland.
The barber shop in the Carrollton Hotel, Baltimore, sterilizes everything it uses in the shop. The sterilizing is done by heat. The towels, the razors, the strops, the soap, the combs and brushes are all sterilized before being used on a customer. Where there is no sterilization have the barber use Newbro's Herpicide. It kills the dandruff germ, and it is an antiseptic for the scalp, and for the face after shaving. All leading barbers everywhere appreciate these potent facts about Herpicide and they use it. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

THE BIRTH

of the Genuine Round Oak thirty-four years ago marked the change in heating of stoves from crudity to perfection. No other stove will burn all kinds of fuel with economy, success and satisfaction to the user.

In using coal, for instance, it has a double fire pot with center grate, which prevents the formation of clinkers and gives the hottest fire around the outside of fire pot, instead of in the center.

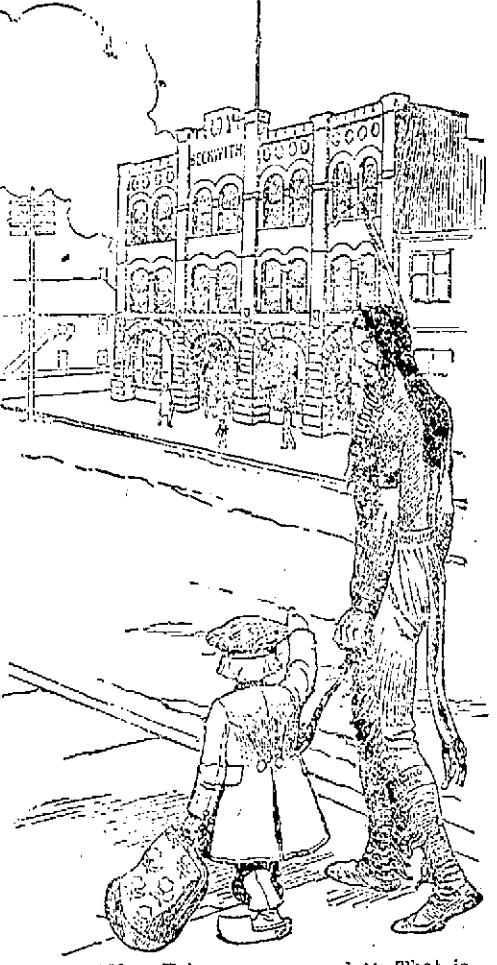

It has a hot blast, used for soft coal only.

The air is taken in at the feed door, carried around the top of the fire pot and discharged on top of fire through a series of openings. This burns the soot and gases, and makes the smoke white, thus a steady, even fire can be maintained with the hot blast alone, burning coal from the top downward.

Then, for hard coal with or without magazine, and coke or wood, it is equally successful.

You simply cannot afford to pass the ROUND OAK by, if you need a heating stove.

Always look for the name "ROUND OAK" on the leg. There are hundreds of imitations.

"Yes, Fritz, you guessed it. That is the Round Oak Office Building. Tomorrow we will see the shops where the Round Oaks are made."

— FORTY YEARS AGO —

Janesville Gazette, Tuesday, October 10, 1865.—The brakemen on the Lehigh Valley railroad went on a strike last week. In one day enough discharged soldiers were found to fill the places of the strikers, who were told to look elsewhere for employment.

The Russian-American telegraph is reported finished to Fort St. James on the Fraser River, and the prospects of its early completion are promising.

In Cochon, China, bull races are very much in vogue. The bulls are harnessed to chariots and run with great speed.

An Editor Relates His Travels.—"We returned home on Thursday," says an editor, "after a trip of about six hundred miles in three and a half days, having in that time passed over four States, nine railroads, four oxcars and a barouche. Any person who has done more in that time, will please forward his address, and the small balance he owes us."

Suits Against Rebel Postmasters.—The institution of suits against Southern Postmasters for the recovery of Government moneys, which they had on hand when their States succeeded, calls forth a general howl from those impoverished rebels. There is little disposition on the part of the Government to show them mercy, for it is remembered, when the disruption of the Union, in 1861, seemed inevitable, the Southern Postmasters, with scarcely an exception failed to render their accounts as required by law, and retained in their possession the funds.

The Cost of Iron Rails.—An experienced manufacturer writes: My experience in the manufacture of rails shows that an average of about thirty-two days labor is expended directly in the production of a gross ton of railroad bars—in taking the ore and coal from the mines, and delivering the finished iron from the mill ready for shipment. Add to this wear and tear of furnace, machinery, building, etc., interest, capital, and royalty for the minerals consumed, and it will appear that the estimate of fifty days labor is not much too great, even upon a ton of rails, when a fair margin is allowed for profit.

Ninety-five of one hundred New York teachers wrote to the Board of Education urging the retention of the right to floor. But the Board wisely decided to restrict that privilege to Principals, and require a record in each case.

Forget It's Hot!

Some people cannot enthuse very much over cloaks or furs while the weather is warm.

What's the difference whether one buys a winter garment on a hot day or a cold day? It's all in one's feelings.

Our Stock is in great condition now.

The New Styles are all in.

It is certainly the right time to buy.

The Winter Cloak is usually thought over for some time. It is a weighty subject with most women. Cannot always be decided at once. It is one's privilege to look around. All We Ask Is:

Do not overlook us in the looking.

For Misses and Children

The cloaks that we have gathered here are the best styles from several leading makers. Not high priced but possessing individuality, exclusive ideas a little out of the ordinary that will please the younger members.

The Fur Coats

which we show in Rich Neaseal, Monkey, Wool Seal, and Mink Mermont, are a little ahead of anything to be seen in these diggings. Fur Coats promise to be very popular. Ours are the reliable sort that we can recommend and stand back of.

The Equitable Life will be the first of the old line companies to get on its feet and resume business.

Janesville is said to have thirty launches on the river above the dam. They were out in full force last Sunday.

The oldest inhabitant says that he never saw such weather in October, and yet we have it almost every year.

The marshal will be supported by all good people in his efforts to enforce the early closing and Sunday laws.

There will be no coal strike next year, says John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers. Mr. Mitchell is in position to know.

If ever a man was justified in spending trust funds to defeat a political measure, McCall was justified in aiding to defeat Bryanism and the free silver heresy in 1896.

The Manufacturers' association is back of the employing printers, in the struggle in which they are now engaged. The open shop is the only solution to the problem.

Every beet is said to be a little sugar factory in itself. The beet family is wonderfully busy just now and a good crop of sugar will result. The weather could not be better for the work.

Tom Lawson has called to his aid half a dozen reform governors to contribute to his fame as the king bee reformer. It is a little surprising that the world managed to jog along before Tom was discovered.

F. M. Smith, the borax king, whose 20 mule team is now making a tour of the state, conducted a seed store in company with his brother Julius, thirty years ago on West Milwaukee street. He is one of the wealthy men of the country today.

LUCK AND SUCCESS.

President Roosevelt says: "The great prizes of life come by accident, and no human being knows this better than one who has drawn one of them. Had a few events over which no one had any control other than they were, it is possible that I might never have held the high office I now occupy."

People may say what they will about there not being any such thing as "luck," or "chance," but we must all admit that there is such a thing. There is no use denying the fact that, as Shakespeare says, "Fortune brings in some boats that are not steered." We must all admit that things over which a man has no control, unforeseen happenings, or events with which he had nothing to do and on which he had not calculated, often change the whole course of his career. Good positions do not always come by merit, or as the result of one's own direct efforts. It is now a poor laboring man or washerwoman who falls heir to a fortune by the death of some relative; or, again it is a poor girl who is suddenly raised to wealth and what the world calls high position by marrying a man of rank or fortune. Every schoolboy knows that there is a great advantage in being in the right place in just the nick of time, and that being there is often a matter of chance.

Not The Price of Success.

But, after all, who will be foolish enough to say that luck is the toy of chance, or that true success is the result of accident or fate?

No; luck is not God's price for success, nor does He flicker with men. When we consider the few who owe fortune or position to accident, or "luck," in comparison with the masses who have to fight every inch of the way to their own loaves, what are they, in reality, but the exceptions to the rule that character, merit—not fate, or "luck," or any other bogey of the imagination—control the destinies of men? The only luck that plays any great part in a man's life is that which inheres in a stout heart, a willing hand, and an alert brain.

Roosevelt's "Luck."

We hear a great deal about "Roosevelt's luck," but what would it have availed him if he was not ready for the opportunity when it came—if he had not trained himself through years of persistent drill to grasp it, if he had not been prepared to make the best use of it?

He did not start out with the deliberate ambition to become president. His general aim was to make Theodore Roosevelt just as large, as complete, and as fine a man as possible, and no pains were too great, no exercise or drill or training or effort to self-improvement too troublesome or exhausting to undertake in order to make himself physically strong and intellectually vigorous.

Mr. Roosevelt told me that he never would have been in his present position but for his long, persistent, and vigorous self-training.

The resolution which he never lost sight of was to train himself to do the duty nearest him with such completeness, earnestness and efficiency that it would best prepare him for the next thing which came, and he always saw the step to the thing above him in the thing he was doing. He knew that the key which would unlock the door to the next opportunity must be wrought out of the thing he was then doing—Orison Sweet Marden, in Success.

THE MADISON INTERURBAN.

Whether or not the Janesville-Madison interurban line is built in the near future, depends very largely upon the people of Janesville, Madison and other towns along the route.

The man has at last come to the front, who is willing to undertake the enterprise, providing conditions are favorable in the matter of franchises.

The fact is generally recognized that interurban lines are branching out in all directions, forming a net work of inland transportation that is rapidly developing sections of the country heretofore neglected.

Wherever these roads are successfully operated they enjoy the benefits of a reasonable freight franchise and this feature is not only a benefit to the road but a great convenience to the patrons as well.

The city of Madison is already considering this kind of a franchise for the new road with chances that it will meet with favor. The same proposition will doubtless come before the Janesville council, in the near future and when it does it should meet with favorable consideration.

The project for the new road is being promoted by John Parson, the millionaire banker of Chicago and New York. Mr. Parson is a man of ample means, as well as of ample resources.

He is in close touch with capitalists, and enjoys their confidence to the fullest extent.

He is more than this for he belongs to the class of practical, enterprising men who do things. A man of rare, good judgment and quick decision, he takes in situations at a grasp and if conditions are favorable, never hesitates to act promptly.

Mr. Parson spent an hour in Janesville last week after his engineers had gone over the proposed route. He liked the city and its surroundings and will be ready to talk business on his return from New York, the latter part of the month.

In the meantime it is up to the people to decide whether they want the line or not.

Mr. Parson is largely interested in interurban lines in Illinois and desires to enter Wisconsin by extending the Rockford, Beloit and Janesville line to Madison, and later to Milwaukee and other points. He is a good man for any town and Janesville will be fortunate if he becomes interested in the city.

PRESS COMMENT.

Washington (Kan.) Register: Only two men in this town still wear celluloid collars.

Chicago Tribune: Along with the ice famine comes the startling report that the stock of wire gauze and mosquito netting is getting low.

Chicago Record-Herald: Emperor Francis Joseph ridicules the story that he intends to resign. Like Chamberlain, M. Depew, Francis Joseph wears side whiskers.

Washington Post: There are some indications that the president will do about as well with his railway rate bill in the senate as a Swede would in soliciting life insurance in Norway.

Racine Journal: It having been demonstrated electric lamp bulbs consume enough heat to under some conditions set things on fire, persons will be careful winter nights in taking one to bed with them.

Milwaukee News: If Governor La Follette runs for president, Stuyvesant Fish should be careful how he handles his thumbs.

Marquette Eagle-Star: We have a very cultured city but the advance sale on Shakespearean plays can hardly be noticed.

Sheboygan Journal: The Hungarian deputies have decided to stand up for their rights. In America Hungarians rights consist of playing the accordion when other nationalities are trying to sleep.

El Paso Herald: Europe has a sort of impression that if King Alfonso of Spain had not been born to a throne he would now be filling, creditably enough, an engagement as a cheap sport in a country town.

Wausau Record: The next time the Hon. "Skinner" Murphy of Milwaukee is bribed he will be careful to select as his bribers men whom he can have indicted by a grand jury when he gets a streak of conscience and will avoid all immunes.

Winnebago Local: It is curious how everybody makes a dive for the seats nearest the front when they go to a show or entertainment, and when they go to church will crowd the rear until the latch on the entrance door has a backache under the strain.

Superior Telegram: President Roosevelt has ordered the removal of a government clerk who married an actress at sight. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat inquires if this is consistent with the president's theories on race suicide? We think it is. Actresses are not at all noted for the subsequent largeness of their families.

New London Republican: Apples are scarce, potatoes are rotting badly, eggs are away up in price and butter rules strong in the market. Meats will command high prices in order that the packers may readily meet the fines which are being assessed against them. Mankind eagerly awaits authentic news from the buckwheat fields. Therein is our only possible salvation.

Oshkosh Northwestern: It is claimed a sixteen-year-old farmer girl discovered a burned bridge on the Milwaukee road near Janesville and signalled a special train just in time to prevent an accident. There is one thing about the story, however, which is rather suspicious—no mention is made of the girl heroine using a red petticoat to flag the train.

Madison Journal: There is room enough in Wisconsin yet. Forest county, of which we hear so much, has in its borders only 1,400 people, most of them in Cranston. There are three times that number in the Sixth ward and Fair Oaks. Forest county has 1,424 square miles, hence there isn't quite one settler to every 640 acres of land within its borders and mind it, it has taken eighteen years to gain this growth, including its recent wonderful boom.

La Crosse Leader-Press: McCurdy, Jr., drew the tidy little sum of a million and half dollars from the Mutual in "commissions" in less than twenty years, while his brother-in-law got a little less than a million, his father got $160,000 in straight salary and what he could make in speculation with the company's funds, and his various cousins, uncles, aunts, cousins-in-law and other relatives near and distant took about what they wanted. The McCurdy family seems to have been the most thriving industrial family in this country and it seems as though it would now be almost able to stand alone without further support from the policyholders.

Madison Democrat: The city of Racine has supported 137 saloons with a license of only $200, but at a special election held a few days ago the license was raised to $500, which will probably reduce the number of saloons to 100. Temperance people won the day by a close margin, and at the same time added some $20,000 to the municipal revenue. Madison's turn comes next, and cases like that of Niebuhr are making the public sentiment which will render victory for good government easy.

Oshkosh Northwestern: As a matter of state pride, therefore, there is nothing to induce the people of Wisconsin, or at least those who are enrolled as opponents of the governor, to change their attitude toward him in respect to his presidential ambitions. It would be a fine thing for the state of Wisconsin to furnish a chief executive of this nation, but when we do so we want a man who will give promise of performing the duties of the office and conducting himself in his relations with other men in a manner that will reflect pride and honor on the estate from which he hails. And without question there is a large number of good Republicans in Wisconsin who will feel they would be taking long chances by trying to aid Mr. La Follette to an official position so high and honorable, and the responsibilities of which are so important.

WILL DECIDE WHAT IS THE REAL MATTER

Question of Small Growth of Janesville in Past Five Years

To B. Solv'd.

"Why has Janesville not grown more than six hundred in the last five years?" This is the subject for discussion at the Twilight club this evening. The subject is of enough live interest to the citizens of Janesville to insure a large gathering at the opening evening of the tenth year of the club. I. P. Wortendyke is the leader for the evening and he has divided the subject into five subdivisions, the Census, Railway Discrimination, Taxation, Land or Oil, and the Janesville Advancement Association. The speaker will be held this year at the Y. M. C. A. building as in the past. Support is served at six o'clock.

OBITUARY.

Archie Rolfe. Local relatives of Archie Rolfe of Broadhead received word yesterday of his sudden and unexpected death which occurred Sunday evening. Mr. Rolfe had been assisting his wife with the housework she being slightly ill, and up till seven o'clock was feeling in excellent health. For some years he has been troubled with heart disease and an attack of the malady coming on that evening caused his demise. The deceased was a young man of high character who was well thought of in his home town and was a meat cutter by trade. There are left to mourn his loss a wife, a father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Rolfe of Broadhead, and one sister, Mrs. George Stewart who resides in the northern part of the state. Burial of the deceased will be Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock.

James Logue. Word has been received of the death of James Logue of Harvard on Monday. Mr. Logue is well known in Janesville and has been in the livestock business in Harvard for many years.

BESIEGE VICE IN BIG CITIES

Methodists Plan Crusade on Evil Haunts in the Fall of 1936.

INVITE FOREIGN DELEGATES

Representatives From Every State in the Union and the Old World Are to Be Asked to Participate in the Coming Revival.

Freeport, Ill., Oct. 10.—Resolutions urging a war on vice in Chicago and other large cities went through the Rock River conference with enthusiasm, and in the fall of 1936 the metropolis of the west will be placed under siege by Methodist preachers in a crusade which will eventually extend to other great centers of population.

The war will be inaugurated with a great missionary convention in Chicago, to which will be invited delegates from every state and from foreign lands.

The movement was launched by Dr. A. B. Leonard, general secretary of the Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church, in an address before the conference.

Dr. Leonard called attention to the good results of the recent missionary conference at Cleveland. He pleaded for a larger meeting, and was loudly applauded when he declared Chicago the place where the movement should be centered. When he had concluded Dr. Fred H. Sheets, assistant missionary secretary, offered a resolution, which was adopted, providing for the meeting late in October, 1936.

The resolution was signed by the Revs. H. G. Jackson, M. C. Hartzell, John Thompson and Frank H. Sheets. Bishop Wilson spoke on "Aggressive Evangelism," at the request of the conference, voiced in the resolution presented by Dr. P. H. Swift of Chicago.

Makes Financial Report. Dr. Leonard, secretary of the General Missionary society, made a report on finances.

The full amount raised this year was $102,500 from all sources. Referring to the income of the General Missionary society, showed an increase in the following ratio: In 1932, $1,281,722; in 1933, $1,405,948; in 1934, $1,541,639; in 1935, $1,654,224. Nearly $2,000,000 was given for benevolent purposes in the Rock River churches in the last year. This is an increase of $30,000 over 1934. The average for the churches is about $675.

The next session of the conference probably will be held in Chicago, in St. James' church, which Dr. W. A. Quayle is the new pastor. A committee from St. James' is here to invite the ministers.

Want Mormon Senator Removed.

Presiding Elder A. T. Horn presented a resolution on Mormonism, which was sent to the committee on marriage and divorce without being read. It calls upon the senate to declare the seat of Reed Smoot vacant and to submit an amendment to the constitution prohibiting polygamy and polygamous practices in any state or territory of the union. In the preamble attention is directed to the admissions of President Smith of the Mormon church before the senate committee which investigated Smoot's case.

The Rev. W. H. Smith, who was a member in 1931, recalled the session in that year at Freeport, as the guests of the same church which now is entertaining the ministers.

C. H. Fowler, now one of the most prominent Methodist bishops, was one of the 132 men who then received appointments to pastorates and sent to Jefferson St., Chicago. It was one of the seven Methodist churches of Chicago, where now there are 141. That year the preachers gathered in front of the church, which stood on the site of the present conference meeting place and raised the stars and stripes on the steeple, afterward conducting a public war meeting at the request of the people of Freeport.

Clerk of Asphalt Company Makes Astonishing Statement of Offer Made by President's Secretary.

New York, Oct. 10.—Testimony taken in the suit in which Venezuela is trying to collect $11,000,000 damages from the New York and Bermudez Asphalt company, of which Gen. Francis V. Greene is president, showed how easy it is to buy evidence for and against Venezuela.

John V. Baldwin, clerk in the New York office of the company during the Matos revolution, testified that Miller, Gen. Francis V. Greene's secretary, had offered some weeks ago to give evidence for $5,000 or a good job.

Among things which Miller would be glad to furnish for value received, said Baldwin, was documentary evidence of the close relations existing between Camer, the present receiver of the Bermudez asphalt lake, and the A. L. Barber interests, now receiving its product, and copies of interesting cablegrams to and from Caracas during the revolution.

Miller also offered to make an affidavit that an incriminating letter had been transmitted to the company by Nicoll, Anable and Lindsay from revolutionary sources, asking the company for more money, arms and ammunition.

Orrey E. Thurber, another witness, backed up his affidavit, declaring that the Bermudez asphalt people had fomented the revolution. He declared, however, that he believed Gen. Francis

DISCARDED HUSBAND KILLS WIFE AND SELF
Draws Revolver and Slays 17-Year-Old Spouse When She Refuses to Go With Him.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Fred Raver, 26 years old, whose home is in Dolton, Ill., after being deserted by his wife Berta, 17 years old, met her Monday evening in Chicago Heights, and when she refused to return to him he shot her twice, killing her almost instantly. Then pointing the weapon toward his head he fired a bullet into his brain, dying instantly.

Raver married a year ago and lived for a time in Dolton, Ill. The police of Chicago Heights assert that after losing his position in Dolton, Raver was unable to support his wife, who returned to the home of her mother, Mrs. William Jones, 1438 Lowe avenue.

Mrs. Raver went shopping with her sister-in-law, Mrs. George Jones, and while they were returning to the Jones home, in Lowe avenue, Mrs. Jones saw Raver approaching. She cautioned Mrs. Raver not to go with her husband and when he asked his wife to cross the street to speak to him she refused.

The Ladies' Home Journal says: "For social correspondence, engraved stationery should be plain, unruled, folding once to fit the envelope, white, cream, cream white, gray or gray-blue, of good quality. Avoid devices of unusual size, and anything conspicuous or odd."

"An embossed or colored address at the head of each sheet is the sensible fashion of today. Initials used with the address, or in its stead, are small and usually inclosed within a ring or scroll."

"Social correspondence should never be conducted upon postal cards or upon business or office paper. Exciting neatness, a clear, legible note without flourishes, commends the writer."

"It is the present fashion to write on the first and fourth pages, then acrosswise on the third and second, for convenience in blotting. The date, written in full, should be placed at the top of a letter at the right side. On a note it is written at the close at the left and below the signature. Use only engraved cards—the address is not necessary, although in good form."

CLOSES BUSINESS OF ORGANIZATION

OLD BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION COMPLETES ITS WORK.

NEW ASSOCIATION FORMED

The Janesville Advancement Association Will Continue Its Work on New Lines.

At the meeting of the Janesville Business Men's Association held last evening at the City Hall the old organization turned over the funds on hand to the new organization, the Janesville Advancement Association, and closed their life of usefulness in promoting Janesville. The Business Men's Association has long been the moving factor in promoting Janesville and it is due to their efforts that the majority of the factories now in operation here have been started. The old organization was organized by Levi Carle as President and A. E. Bingham as the secretary. It was through their efforts that the P. Hohenadel canning factory, the Rock County Sugar company and other industries were brought to the city. In turning over their funds and good will to the new organization, the Janesville Advancement Association, the old society goes out of existence, while the work they began will be carried on by the new association.

Same Membership
The membership of the new organization is practically the same as the old, although the manner of handling matters is much different. George S. Parker is president; T. S. Nolan, vice president; I. P. Wortendyke, secretary; and Fred Clemons, treasurer. These officers and H. H. Bliss, P. J. Mount, W. H. Greenman and Arthur Fisher comprise the board of directors. An advisory board consisting of J. M. Bostwick, W. G. Wheeler, T. O. Howe, Levi Carle, M. G. Jeffris, W. S. Jeffris, C. S. Jackman, M. Hayes, George Sutherland and A. E. Bingham are to act with the board of directors in all matters where their assistance is desired.

The Funds.
The funds of the Janesville Advancement Association are raised by the purchasing of memberships of five dollars each. The holding of a membership carries with it the right of one vote for each membership. The total number of memberships held by any one person is not restricted giving the holder a vote for each one. Thus far the funds have not been as rapidly for the coming as is desired. Those who have not yet subscribed to a membership should do so at once. Last evening the old Business Men's Association turned over the funds they had on hand, some sixty-seven dollars, to the new organization and this will go into the general treasury.

Factories in Sight.
The board of directors meet each Thursday afternoon and the work of inducing factories to locate here is progressing rapidly. Nothing definite has yet been gained with any of the persons they have been in correspondence with but several good propositions are being considered which may bear fruit before spring.

CURRENT ITEMS

Drunks in Court: For drunkenness and disorderly conduct Joe Daily this morning paid a fine and costs amounting to $2.10; Michael McManis, $2.10; and John Howard, $2.10. Jack Kelsey was assessed $2.10, but his case was adjourned two weeks.

Buy Business Interest: W. W. Dalton of this city has purchased the Rogers' interest in the firm of Tuttle and Rogers at Clinton. Mr. and Mrs. Dalton will remove to that place.

Nearly Completed: The foundation for the new sugar factory which is being built by Theodore Hapke at Fair Oaks, near Madison, are practically finished, and the work of installing the machinery and building the superstructure will now be pushed forward as rapidly as possible.

Installed Last Night: Leonard Artis and Henry White of this city were present at the meeting of the Beloit lodge of Colored Odd Fellows in Beloit last evening. The newly elected officers were installed and Mr. White was put in the office of Noble Grand.

Lost Child Found: The little two-year-old son of M. Pfennig, who resides on Ruger avenue, wandered away from home this morning and reached the home of J. M. Bostwick on Court street, where he was finally located by a searching party.

Volney Atwood Improving: Volney Atwood was much improved today from the stroke of paralysis which he received Saturday night.

Business in Clinton: James Selkirk, who formerly conducted a harness shop and leather goods store in this city, has recently purchased the harness and leather goods business of Mr. McNulty of Clinton.

Wagon Removed: For the benefit of the correspondent to the Kiekers' column of two weeks ago it might be well to notice that within twenty-four hours of the council ordering the popcorn and peanut wagon from the corner of the Court-House Park it was an accomplished fact.

Meeting Today: The first meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution for the coming year is being held this afternoon at the residence of Mrs. A. P. Lovejoy.

DECORATORS AT WORK IN EAST SIDE ODD FELLOWS' HALL

Decorators and electricians are at work in East Side Odd Fellows' hall, so changing the interior appearance that it will, when finished, be one of the prettiest halls in southern Wisconsin. The walls have been tastefully papered, the ceiling painted, the backs of the seats around the room padded, a settee has been built in the reception room and the woodwork has been touched up. A row of red and white incandescent lights is being placed around the ceiling.

LITTLE GIRL WAS IN BAD BOYS' COMPANY

Fifteen-Year-Old Jennie Jacobson of Town of Fulton Was Taken to Police Station Last Night.

Jennie Jacobson, a rather comely little girl under sixteen years of age, was taken in charge by the police last evening and spent the night at the station. She had been in Janesville since Thursday and had been noticed by the officers on more than one occasion in company with a group of boys whose conduct is frequently anything but creditable to their parents and the city. The young girl left her home in the town of Fulton, telling her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Jacobson, that she was going to visit with a friend who resided about halfway between the farm and this city. She came directly to Janesville, and was soon in the hands of youthful admirers. Last night City Marshal Appleby overheard two of them quarrelling as to which was to be her escort, on the streets. He decided that it was about time for the authorities to intervene and with Officer Fanning took a circuitous route about a couple of blocks and stopped the trio in the midst of their bickering. The escort who seemed to have the upper hand put on a bold front and told the officers that he was taking the lady to the Railroad hotel to secure lodgings for her for the night. As they were not headed in that direction this story was not given full credence. The two youths presently became impudent and were treated to a little application of Officer Fanning's club which caused them to lose no time in taking to their heels, once they were released. At the station the little girl first related a story which was mostly false and then broke down and told the truth. Since coming here she had spent one night—Friday—at the Park hotel, and another in the hay-loft of a barn. This morning Marshal Appleby sent a rig out to the Jacobson home to bring the girl's father or mother to the city. The former had already left for Janesville with a neighbor named Bliss. Mrs. Jacobson was greatly surprised and distressed by the findings brought to her, but being unwell was unable to come. Mr. Jacobson was located in the city about noon and he took the little girl back with him this afternoon.

ENTIRE PLANT WILL BE RUNNING ON 23D

Janesville Machine Company Will, Then Have a Force of Workmen in Every Department.

Supporters of the trolley system that will be installed across South River street between the foundry and the machine-shop of the Janesville Machine company's plant were being excited today. A gang of men have been at work the past few days preparing for the placing of these props. With the exception of the "tracks" in the foundry this is the last part of the system to be built and Assistant Superintendent Milliken, who is in charge of the building operations, expects to have it complete by Saturday, so that trolleys can be running Monday. Besides the force of men that is engaged in this work there are partial forces in the foundry, plow-shop, blacksmith-shop and machine-shop. When the trolley is in operation these complements will be enlarged and by the following Monday it is thought that a full force in all but the woodworking and shipping departments will have been taken on, though extra men will be added continually for some time. No hands are yet employed in the erecting room—the newly established department—and consequently no machinery is being turned out at present. In this portion of the plant hereafter all machinery will be set up.

FROST PREDICTED FOR THIS EVENING

Warning Comes from Government Weather Office at Chicago—Last Night's Rain a Help.

From the United States Weather Bureau office at Chicago comes the warning of a frost that is scheduled to visit this portion of the United States tonight. The weather will be clear and continue to cool—down to the thirty-two-degree point or below. Last night's rain, though not heavy, was a great help in many ways. Some difficulty has been experienced this fall in removing the sugar beets from the ground, the soil being so exceedingly dry and hard. The rain was sufficient to soften up the earth and ease the beet-digging operations. It also relieved the mind of the tobacco-growers for the curing of the hanging crop was delayed in it too rapid gain. The country roads have been in a terribly dusty condition and both horse drivers and motorists have been greatly inconvenienced. But now the dust is settled. The merchants are also rejoicing, not only because of the rain, but for the cold. Fall stocks have been drawn on the market so far and the change of weather means a great increase of business.

West Side Has Good Bill

The West Side theatre opened this week's program to a good house last night. The bill includes dancing, singing, acrobatic and comedy features, and McCune & Grant, as comedy bar-actors, present a very nice act. The Welch in Irish comedy are good, and in fact, the entire bill is very good. It includes also Carrie Winslow, dancer; Charlie & Temple, and Miss Maud McDonald in illustrated songs.

MAY OVERSTEP THEIR AUTHORITY

PURE FOOD COMMISSION HAVE CASES ON THEIR HANDS.

ALL BECAUSE OF BOLOGNA

Four Local Dealers Taken to Task for Selling Imported Goods Said To Be Poor.

On the second of October State Dairy and Food Inspector J. G. Moore visited several of the butcher shops in this city and secured samples of bologna sausage which were taken to the laboratory at Madison and analyzed. As a result four merchants were called to municipal court today to answer to the charge of offering for sale at their places of business sausage containing artificial coloring, preservatives, and antiseptics consisting of boracic acid or a salt thereof.

Retailers Are Blameless
While the commission does not claim that the coloring matter is rank poison, the fight is made on articles in which it is used on the ground that it is possible for such preservatives to disguise poor quality meat and thus work a fraud on the public. In the local cases, the meat in every instance came from the big Chicago and Milwaukee packers and they will be the ones who will have to take the penalty in the end, as they have guaranteed their products and agreed to stand behind the retailers who sell them.

Merchants in Court
W. A. Murray, W. W. Woodring, J. B. Smith, and W. W. Nash were the four dealers who appeared in court. J. B. Smith was so sure of his product that he encouraged the inspector to have it thoroughly examined. For he had just received his consignment accompanied by a letter from the packers, in which it was stated that the sausage was of the uncolored variety and able to pass the most minute inspection of the chemists. He had given the company notice that it was the uncolored kind he wanted. W. W. Nash told the court that it appeared to him that the defendant in the case, with the inspector and the state chemist against him, would have a pretty hard row to hoe and not deeming the fight worth his while, he would plead guilty. The others all pleaded not guilty and the time for their trials will be set on Monday, Oct. 16. The fine levied against Mr. Nash was the minimum—$25 and costs amounting in all to $7.50. This fine will undoubtedly be paid by the packing company with which he did business. W. W. Woodring only started business about two weeks ago.

Other Cities Visited
Ten butchers in Madison were recently brought into court and Milwaukee has had a similar experience. Without exception the merchants of Janesville, if they did sell meat so adulterated, did so without intent and are innocent of wilful wrongdoing, though they can technically be held liable. The following letters show their ground:

The Letters
The Agar Packing Co.
Chicago, Sept. 18, 1905.

Dear Sir: Our Mr. Mitchell advises us that you have had some trouble with the pure food commissioners. We beg to advise you that we will guarantee you against loss or fine on any of our products which we may ship you in the future.

Trusting that this will meet with your approval, and soliciting your further favors, we remain,

JAS. S. AGAR.

Plankinton Packing Co.
Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 9, 1905.
Mr. W. A. Murray, Janesville, Wis.
Dear Sir: At the request of our salesman, Mr. J. C. Krueger, we wish to inform you that we hereby guarantee our sausage to be sound and wholesome, and manufactured without the use of preservative in any manner injurious to the public health.

We also guarantee the same to be manufactured in compliance with the pure food laws of the state of Wisconsin, and agree that we will in all respects indemnify you against any loss upon account of any prosecution wherein it is claimed that the said product is manufactured in violation of the pure food laws of said state.

Yours respectfully,

PLANKINTON PACKING CO.

ARE HUNTING BEAR A LA ROOSEVELT

Janesville Young Men Out in Rocky Mountains Seeking the "Big Specimens."

Albert Gramke and Edward Klenow, two former young men of this city, who have been making their home in Denver for the past year, are out in the wilds of the Rocky Mountains hunting for the biggest bears, the fleetest deer and the fiercest catamounts. They are seeking recreation a la Roosevelt and are working valiantly to excel the bear record he has established. The Bower City boys are two of a party of four, James Adams and Roy Prickett, stereotypers in the Denver Daily News office, being their companions. The party left Denver September 17 and the objective point was Heffron's ranch, ten miles beyond Kremmling, in the wilds near Sulphur Springs. Adams is an old-time hunter, having spent much time with the gun in both North Dakota and Colorado.

Ferari Brothers Met with Opposition in Beloit—No Trace of Robbers Yet Discovered.

Janesville people who visited Beloit yesterday say that Ferrari brothers' experience with complaints about the location of tents and injunctions against the company for obstructing streets in Janesville was mild next to the opposition that they met with in the Lincoln City. Kicks came from all sides, for Beloit business men were of the belief that at this late season and after the interstate fair the carnival would be a failure, giving the city poor advertising and not bringing any cash into the coffers of the merchants. The farmers are busy now and the city people are engaged in preparations for the winter's busy season and it is doubtful if the attendance will be up to the standard. As yet no trace of the robbers, who, it is now believed, succeeded in getting away with between $1,200 and $1,500 Sunday night, has been found. The local police, who are well acquainted with the known circumstances, are of the opinion that some of the roustabouts and "toughs" who follow the show are responsible.

FASHION NOTES

PARIS FASHION NOTES.
"It is not always the woman who has the most extensive wardrobe who is the best-dressed," said a world-famed couturiere, discussing the fashions within the reach of an average dress allowance, "but rather she who knows best how to wear to advantage what she has."

And to realize the value of this sermon, one needs to see the smart shops of Paris with their wealth of beautiful gowns exposed to the view of ambitious admirers who confess their bewilderment and inability to choose designs that will prove lasting and fashionable.

A few gowns, well chosen, well-kept and worn with discretion can make the sanctorial reputation of a woman. There should be the tailored suit for general wear, of course, then another of dressier design for more formal use, with a handsome afternoon toilette and an evening gown. A modish evening wrap and a supply of separate bodices complete the list of essentials for a moderate wardrobe.

The suit for general wear might well be of plain or one of the smart checked materials, since a gown of this description is indispensable. Fabrics in checks and plaids for dressy wear are likewise smart but usually very expensive in themselves in addition to requiring elegant trimmings that are apt to drain the average purse or subject it to great strain.

Dressier tailored gowns are made of cloths, frequently combined with velvet. In fact these combinations are considered ultra-smart this season, affording an opportunity for most artistic effects. Especially chic is a frock of tailored design in dail blue cloth, the skirt having three graduated flounces put on to simulate a tunic effect. The top flounce extends to the waistline where its surplus fullness is laid in box plaits and the dropping ends at the bottom are finished with silk-covered buttons.

With the skirt is worn a smart coat of radium velvet, fitting the figure perfectly with the skirt part cut pointed at the front. There is a vest of embroidered cloth made visible by the V-shape out of the coat and below the bustline the velvet is out in points and draped across the figure, the overlapping points being finished with large blue buttons.

Large ovals of the embroidered cloth are set in the top of the sleeves, which fit closer to the arm below the elbow until they are almost tight at the wrist.

Smart modistes are becoming more reconciled to the long coat, but they have decided that it must undergo certain changes if it is to be smiled upon by the elite. As a result new designs show handsome shoulder trimmings of silk cords, extended vest effects of finer cloth and new severe and cut designs which take away the plebian qualities of the first designs of the season and make them really elegant.

An example is given in a costume of green novelty tweed made over the same color silk. The plaited skirt is almost concealed by the long glove-fitting coat but above the hem there are two applied tucks stitched on with the narrowest of soutache braids.

A combination vest and facing distinguishes the front of the coat, being of embroidered cloth put on with a plating of the braid-fused upon the skirt. The revers of green moire are bound with silk braid and a hat of green velvet, plume-trimmed completes the costume.

Satin and velvet are associated in the construction of very chic costumes, as are also ribbed silk velvet and corduroy, which are offered in all the new colorings.

Dark blue broadcloth costumes are more elegant than can be described in mere words. A stunning French model is made with a long skirt circular in cut, molding the hips, flaring below and showing a semi-train. The coat is a tight-fitting affair with short ruffling, buttons and revers of the inimitable type. It buttons down the front with buttons of cloth set in dull gold rims, being cut low enough to show the top of a silk waistcoat of an old rose, embroidered in gold. A lace plastron shoes above the vest.

THE YOKE

A Romance of the Days When the Lord Redeemed the Children of Israel From the Bondage of Egypt

CHAPTER XXIX.

THE WAY TO THE SEA.

Kenkenes did not remain long in the apathy of amazement and helplessness. Consternation possessed him the instant he roused himself sufficiently to realize and speculate. He had saved the king and exposed Har-hat, but the accomplishing of this temporary goal had forced the probable commission of a great evil. If death in some form did not overtake the ban bearer he could enrich and strengthen himself from Israel. Then, even if Menephtah's army did not continue to follow him, he would be enabled to buy mercenaries and return equipped to do battle with Menephtah, even as he had vowed. The flower of the military was with him; the Pharaoh was incapable and Egypt demoralized. The success of the traitor seemed assured. What then of Rachel, of his own father, of the faithful ministers, of all whom Kenkenes had loved or befriended? The thought filled him with resolution and vigor.

"If the Lord God of Israel overtakes him not," he said, returning to the king, "then must I! For in my good intent it seems that I have undone thee, Hoteb," he continued, taking the king's hands, "let my father know that I did not with the firstborn; also thou seest the danger into which the nation hath descended in this hour. Help thou the king! I return not, farewell."

He kissed the scribe on the lips and, fleeing himself from his clinging hands, ran through the broken line of the royal guards.

The army was already a compact cluster in the center of a rolling cloud of dust to the south.

When Nechutes had aroused him before daybreak the cupbearer had brought Hoteb with him, and while the messenger broke his fast he had availed himself of the scribe's presence to learn many things. Not the smallest part of his information was the fact that the Pharaoh's scouts had located Israel encamped on a sandy plain at the base of a great hill on the north-eastern arm of the Red sea. Menephtah's army had marched twenty-five miles due south of Vithon and pitched its tents for the night. It was twenty-five miles from that point to Bant-Zephon or the hill before which Israel had camped. The fugitives had chosen the smoothest path for travel, keeping along the Bitter lakes, that their cattle might feed. Their track led in a southerly direction.

But Har-hat, making off with the army, had struck due south. He had chosen this line for more than one advantage it offered. The Arabian desert approached the sea in a series of plateaus or steps. The most westerly was surmounted by a ridge of high hills, higher probably than any other chain within the boundaries of Egypt. The most easterly overlooked the seaboard and was originally, it may be, the old sea margin. At points the tableland advanced within sight of the water, at other localities an intervening space of several miles lay between it and the sea. The summit was flat, at least smooth enough for the passage of horsemen, and at all times it was a good field for strategic maneuvering by an army arrayed against anything which might be on the beach below.

The slaves were entrapped. The pursuer had but to follow the pursued in the only open direction and overtake the starving, thirsting multitude at last. But from Har-hat's movement he had meant to continue along this plateau out of sight of Israel until he had posted part of his army in the way of escape to the south. Kenkenes reached this conclusion without much pondering. He had his own maneuvering in mind. Of the captain of Israel, Prince Moses, he would discover, first, if the Lord God had prepared him against Har-hat. The grave question answered to the repose of his mind concerning the welfare of Israel, the path of his next duty would be clearly laid before him. He would join the army and take the life of the ban bearer for the sake of all he loved and Egypt. In the course of the day's events his motive had been excited from the personal desire for revenge to the high intent of a patriot. He felt most confident that he would forfeit his own life in the act.

Not an instant did he hesitate. Ahead of him was the narrow bed of a miniature torrent which rolled out of the desert during the infrequent rains. Now it was dry, packed hard, free of all obstructions except the great boulders and led in a comparatively straight line toward the sea. It was an ideal stretch for running.

He summoned all his forces, gathering in a mighty mental effort, all that depended on his speed, and took the path with a leap. The dazed king and his ministers saw him with whom they had that moment talked stretch a vast and ever widening breach between them with a bat-like swoop, and while they watched he was swallowed up in the distance.

The bed of the torrent served him for the first few miles. Then it turned abruptly toward the Bitter lakes. He left it and entered the rougher country. Thereafter no great bursts of speed were possible, because the runner had to pick his way. He ran, not with a steady pace, each stride equal to the preceding, but with bounds, aside and forward, dimly calculating the safety of the foothold.

Suddenly a column of sand rose under his feet and he dashed through it, blinded and choking, he cleared his eyes, caught his breath and ran on. A gust of wind, like a breath of flame, met him from the east and passed. Then he realized that the atmosphere had thickened, as if an opaque cloud of heat had enveloped the earth. He glanced at the sky and saw that it was strewn with fragmentary clouds, but a little south and east of him was the pillar, unmovable and gilded royally.

There was a storm in the air. Finally the region began to grow level, proving the proximity to the sea. In another moment he came upon the old sea bed. It was sandy, sedge grown, with here and there a palm, and tremendously trampled.

Israel had passed this way. The clash and ring of meeting metal told on his ear. He looked and saw ahead of him two men fighting with a third. Three horses with empty saddles nervously watched the fray.

The single combat was a soldier in the uniform of a common fighting man. One of the pair was a tall Nubian in a striped tunic; the other was an Egyptian, short, fat, purple of countenance—Unas!

With a furious exclamation, Kenkenes slackened his pace only long enough to undo the falchion at his side and rushed to the fight. It did not matter to him who the soldier was or what his cause. The fact that he was fighting the emissaries of Har-hat was sufficient indorsement of the lone soldier, but even as he sprang forward Unas sank on the sand, moved convulsively once or twice, and lay still.

The soldier staggered back from the second servitor and fell. The Nubian, standing over him, swung his heavy weapon aloft, but Kenkenes thrust his falchion over the fallen man and caught the blow as it descended upon the broad back of the blade.

"Set receive your cursed soul!" the Nubian snarled. Kenkenes leaped across the prostrate soldier, and simultaneously the weapons went up, descended and clashed. Then followed a wild and fearful battle.

The Egyptian falchion was nothing more than a sword shaped ax. Therefore these were not tongues of steel which would whip their supple length one across the other and fill the air with the lightning of their play and the devilish beauty of their music. The vanquished would not taste the nice death of a spitted heart. There was yet the method of the stone ax warriors in this battle, and he who fell would be a fearful thing to see.

Perhaps it was because Kenkenes was stronger and more agile; perhaps he remembered Nebornah at that moment, or perhaps he was simply a better fighter. Whatever the cause, his blade went up and descended at last before the Nubian could parry, and the second servitor of Har-hat fell on his face and died.

Chilled by the instant sobering which follows the taking of life, the young man sickened and whirled away from the quivering flesh. Plunging his falchion in the sand to hide its stain, he went back to the fallen soldier.

He knew by the look on the gray face, by the dark pool that had grown beside him, that the warrior had fought his last fight. Kenkenes raised the man's head and heard these words faintly spoken:

"He sent them in pursuit. I knew he meant to do it, but I could not get near to kill him. So I followed them. But thou art her lover. Do thou protect her now."

"Her! Rachel?" Kenkenes cried. "Who art thou?"

"Atsu, once her taskmaster, always her—" the voice died away.

"Where is she?" Kenkenes implored. "In the name of thy gods, go not yet! Where is she?"

The lips parted in answer, but no sound came. The arm went up as if to point, but it fell limp without indicating direction, and with a sigh the soldier turned his face away.

Sobbing, wild with anxiety and grief, Kenkenes shook the inert body, pleading frantically for some sign to guide him to Rachel. But there was no response, for the dead speak not out of Ament.

At last Kenkenes laid the body down and stood up. It had come to him very plainly that but for Atsu already these dead servitors would have been beyond overtaking in pursuit of his love. Though a worshiper of Israel's God, Kenkenes was still Egyptian in his instincts. The man who had died to save Rachel he could not bury unconfined in a grave of sand, where the natural processes of dissolution would destroy him utterly. His and Rachel's debts to Atsu were great, and the demand was made upon him now to discharge all that was possible in the one act of caring for the dead soldier's remains. Kenkenes could not bear the body back to the group he had left about the king, for he had a mission which concerned all the living who were dear to him. Furthermore, the sky was threatening, the desert was a terrible place during high winds, and he dared not delay.

Suddenly a thought struck him. Travelers and seafaring men had told him that there were settlements along the Red sea. Might he not go forward on his way after Israel till he found one of these?

He led the largest horse past the dead servitors and, persuading it to stand, lifted the body of Atsu upon its back. With difficulty he mounted and, supporting the limp burden with one arm, turned again toward the south-east.

As he went forward Kenkenes meditated on the signs of this recent and tragic event. He had searched throughout the length and breadth of Goshen for Rachel, and none had seen her or heard of her since she had fled from Har-hat into the desert, eight months before he had seen her last. Israel was more ignorant of the whereabouts of Rachel than he. He could not tell whether Har-hat knew where she was, nor could he guess from the position of the fighters in which direction the servants had meant to ride. The tracks of their horses were not to be discovered in the great trampled roadway Israel had made.

Of this thing Kenkenes was sure. If Rachel were with Israel she had joined it after he had left Goshen. In that case he was going to her to ask after her safety when he inquired after all Israel. If she were still in Egypt he would stop Har-hat's search forever. This recollection added to his determination and intensified his zeal.

At the beginning of the great fields of sea grass he came upon a little hamlet. It was a considerable distance inland, and the chief industry of the people could have been only the gathering of sedge for hay or the curing of herb and root for medicines. Some of the villagers were in sight, but the most of them were out in the direction of the lakes laboring in the marsh grass.

In the course of the past year's events Kenkenes had learned to be a cautious and skillful fugitive. He did not care to be caught and taxed with the death of the man whose body he bore. The village shrine was the structure nearest to him. It was built of sun dried brick, with three walls, the fourth side open to the sunrise. Kenkenes dismounted and reconnoitered. The shrine was empty, and none of the villagers was near.

He lifted the dead man from the horse and bore the body into the sanctuary. Before the image of Atsu was a long table overlaid with a slab of red sandstone. Here the offerings were left and here Kenkenes laid Atsu, a true sacrifice to the love deity. Reverently the young man closed the eyes and straightened the chilling limbs. Going into his patrimony of jewels sewn in his belt, he took an emerald and, putting it in the hands, crossed them above the breast. Then he laid his mantle over the bier.

At the threshold he found a soft stone, and with that he wrote upon the head of the long table the name of the dead man and Mendes, his native city. Under this he wrote further to the villagers, charging them, in the name of the goddess, to care for the body reverently and return it to the tomb of Atsu's fathers. Having made note of the emerald as remuneration for their labors, he completed the inscription without signature.

Thus he insured the safety and preservation of the bones of Atsu, and in the eye of the average Egyptian he had served the soldier well. But Kenkenes was not satisfied.

As he left the shrine he muttered with trembling lips: "Bless him! The fate is not kind which yields to such goodness no reward save gratitude. There must be, because of the great God's justness, some especial blessing laid up for Atsu."

In the time he had spent in the sanctuary the atmosphere had grown hazy, and the sun shone obscurely. To the east were tumbled and darkening masses, which gathered even as he looked and joined till they stretched in a vast and unbroken sweep about the horizon. The wind had died, and the heat bathed him in perspiration.

Once again his eyes sought the pillar and found it above him, still somewhat to the east, yet in form unchanged, in hue undimmed. Something within him associated the column of cloud with Israel and Israel's God.

He went to his horse and found him terrified and unmanageable. After vain efforts to soothe the creature he walked away a little space, clasping his hands.

"O thou mysterious God, by these tokens thy hand is upon the earth and upon the heavens! Even as thou hast sheltered me thus far, withdraw not thy shielding hand from about me, thy worshiper, in this thy latest hour of mystery."

He skirted the village, now filling with frightened peasants, and took the path of Israel.

It led in a southeasterly direction toward a faroff hill, barely outlined through the haze of the distance. Meanwhile the darkness settled and over the sea the sadder bastion of cloud heaved its sooty bulk up the sky. The air stagnated, and the whole desert was soundless.

If Menephtah's scouts had reported truly, Israel had behind it a hill, east of it the sea. West of it the army would approach. South only could it flee into a torrid, arid, uninhabited desert.

COLLEGE SPORT MUST BE CLEAN

Mr. Roosevelt Has Conference With Coaches of Big Institutions.

BRUTAL CONDUCT IS SCORED

President Wants to Crystallize Opinion in Opposition to Wanton Maiming of Players Who Participate in Athletic Contests.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Theodore Roosevelt, not as president of the United States, but as an American citizen and the father of a college boy who has just come out of a football game with a "split eyebrow" and a "cauliflower ear," has started a movement to put down brutality in football.

To aid him in his crusade he called to the White House Walter C. Camp, general adviser of Yale athletics, William C. Reid Jr., the Harvard football coach, "Doc" Hildebrand, the Princeton coach, "Jack" Owsley, the Yale coach, Dr. E. H. Nichols, and John B. Fine. Secretary Root participated in the conference.

To these men, who practically control the best part of college athletics in the east, President Roosevelt avowed his purpose to "inaugurate a movement having for its object absolutely a clean sport and the eradication of professionalism, money making and brutality from college games."

Begins War on Brutality. The president has enjoyed a long acquaintance with the men with whom he talked, and he talked with them in a practical, person way of the reforms which he considers necessary in order to establish a higher standard of sport.

He suggested the adoption of drastic rules in an intercollegiate code, under which any college team guilty of brutal or unsportsmanlike conduct should be excluded from participating in sports with other colleges.

There is no firmer believer in healthful sports than President Roosevelt. He is himself an athlete. He believes in athletics. The fact that his son, Theodore Jr., has just entered Harvard, and that he has other sons who will some day go to college, lends a personal interest to his action, besides his general interest to advance college sports all over the country.

The president did most of the talking at the conference, and what he said was practically a reiteration of the speech he made at Harvard last June. In the course of that speech he said:

Opposes Deliberate Meanness.

"I believe in outdoor games and I do not mind in the least that they are rough games, or that those who take part in them are occasionally injured. I have no sympathy whatever with the overwrought sentimentality that would keep a young man in cotton wool, and I have a hearty contempt for him if he counts a broken arm or collarbone as of serious consequence when balanced against the chance of showing that he possesses hardihood, physical address and courage."

"But when these injuries are inflicted by others, either wantonly or of set design, we are confronted by the question, not of damage to one man's body, but of damage to the other man's character."

Low Cunning Is Scored.

"Brutality in playing a game should awaken the heartiest and most plainly shown contempt for the player guilty of it, especially if this brutality is coupled with a low cunning in committing it without getting caught by the umpire."

"I hope to see both graduate and undergraduate opinion come to scorn such a man as one guilty of base and dishonorable action, who has no place in the regard of gallant and upright men."

The conference between the president and the athletes named began at luncheon, which occurred at 1:30, and did not end until shortly before 4 o'clock, when the guests left hurriedly to catch the train for New York. It is understood they will endeavor to have action taken along the lines of their talk with the president, but they declined to discuss the matter at the present time.

BANDIT HOLDS UP STAGE COACH

Makes Attempt Single-Handed and Shoots California Driver.

Redding, Cal., Oct. 10.—A bandit single-handed held up the Redding-Deimar stage, which carried money to pay off the employees of the Bully Hill mine. D. N. Haskell, the express messenger, was shot through the abdomen, but will recover. When the driver whipped up the horses two more highwaymen appeared and there was a running fight for 200 yards, the stage finally escaping. A big posse is hunting the robbers.

St. Joe to Break All Records.

St. Joseph, Mich., Oct. 10.—Present figures indicate the marriage record here this year will eclipse that of any year in the history of St. Joseph. Already 12,200 licenses have been issued, and the rush is as great as during the summer months.

Cudahy Treasurer Drops Dead.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 10.—Robert C. Bradford, treasurer for Cudahy Bros. Packing company and for thirty years identified with the packing industry in Milwaukee, dropped dead as a result of heart failure.

William Mackabee recently celebrated the 102d anniversary of his birth, Gray's Ferry road, Philadelphia. He has served eighty-six years in the American navy.

SOCIETY WOMAN IS SHOT DOWN

Family of Divorcee Keeps Facts of Kalamazoo Affair Secret.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 10.—Miss Gertrude Mill's, a prominent society woman, daughter of Judge A. J. Mills and the divorced wife of Frank Cole, was mysteriously shot at her summer home at Gull Lake Sunday evening. She is now at the home of her father and the members of the family refuse to make any statement regarding her injury or how the shooting occurred. They say that Mrs. Cole is under the care of a nurse and cannot be seen. Mrs. Cole was married three years ago to Frank Cole, after a three weeks' courtship. Little was known of Cole here prior to his coming to Kalamazoo and the parents of the girl used every means to discourage the marriage. Several months ago the couple were divorced and Cole has left the city and has not since been heard from. When the shooting occurred Sunday the infant son was with his mother.

Builds Church as Tomb.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 10.—In order that he and his wife may be buried beneath the house of worship, Thomas F. Ryan, the New York financier, is paying the entire cost, $500,000, for the new Cathedral of the Sacred Heart in this city.

Two Men Fatally Stabbed.

Logan, W. Va., Oct. 10.—John Walker, aged 23, and Hiram Snider, aged 30, were stabbed so badly at Chapmansville, that death will probably ensue. Others were injured. The trouble arose over a young woman.

Army Messenger in Trouble.

New York, Oct. 10.—William J. Wilson, for twenty-five years a messenger in the army headquarters at St. Paul, was held in the Tombs court. He is accused of passing a worthless check for $260.

Drops Dead at Funeral.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 10.—While the body of his niece was being taken from the house for burial, Frank Scotte of L'Anse, aged 30 years, dropped dead of heart disease.

Dies in Freight Wreck.

Davenport, Iowa, Oct. 10.—Raymond McCallister was killed when a west-bound freight train on the Rock Island was wrecked in the western part of this city.

Tired Nervous

When you feel languid, tired, nervous and irritable, your vitality is low—your supply of nerve energy exhausted, and your system running down for lack of power.

The organs of the body are working poorly, or not at all, and you are not getting the nourishment needed. This soon impoverishes the blood and instead of throwing off the impurities, distributes it all through the body. This brings disease and misery.

Feed the nerves with Dr. Miles' Nerveine, a nerve food, a nerve medicine, that nourishes and strengthens the nerves, and see how quickly you will get strong and vigorous.

"My wife suffered with nervousness previous to a recent attack of typhoid fever, but after her recovery from the fever, she was much worse, and could hardly control herself being exceedingly nervous when the least excited. She was very restless at night, and never had a good night's rest. She also suffered much from nervous headache. Dr. Miles' Nerveine was recommended by a friend. After the first three doses she had good nights' rest, and at the end of the first week's treatment she was wonderfully improved. Continued use of Nerveine has completed her entire cure."

OTTO KOLB, 1021 Cherry St., Evansville, Ind. Dr. Miles' Nerveine is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money.

WHAT THIS MAN SAYS

Only Re-echoes the Sentiment of Thousands in Our Republic.

The Jansville reader is asked to thoroughly investigate the following: gentleman whose statement is published below will only be too pleased to answer any communication mailed to him if the writer really suffers from the annoying consequences which always attend inactive or weakened kidneys.

W. Samp, of 412 Euclid avenue, proprietors of the largest rock quarrying business in Bolot, says: "I had trouble with my kidneys for many years. It consisted mostly of a lame and aching back, and there were occasions when I had such severe attacks that I could not get out of the house for two or three weeks at a time. I was then practically helpless for it was painful to move. At other times it assumed a milder form, being a dull aching across my kidneys. I used all medicines of different kinds but I never found anything that gave me the satisfaction that Doan's Kidney Pills did. This remedy is worthy of a high recommendation and it is a pleasure for me to endorse it as doing all that is claimed for it."

Pretty more proof life this from Jansville people. Call at the People's drug store and ask what their customers report.

MYSTERY IN DEATH OF A BOY

Father Disputes Playmate's Assertion That Lad Shot Himself.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 10.—Ray Wilson, the 14-year-old son of George Wilson of Central Lake, was shot and killed there under mysterious circumstances. He went to the house of a neighbor named Sagler to play. A short time later word came to his father that he had been shot. Rushing to the Sagler home, Mr. Wilson found his son lying in the yard near the house, bleeding to death. The lad died in his father's arms while being carried home. It was found that he had been shot through the left breast with a charge from a shotgun. The Sagler boys say that young Wilson was holding the gun and in some way shot himself. It is alleged that from the nature of the wound this would have been impossible.

CUTTER BAGS A FISHING TUG

Booth Company's Boat Caught While Poaching in Canadian Water.

Erie, Pa., Oct. 10.—The fish tug Valiant of this city, owned by the Booth company, tarried too long in Canadian waters and failed to get away from the revenue cutter Morrell, which is aiding the Canadian authorities in putting a stop to poaching. The tug had on board Canadian fish when caught. Both tug and cargo will be confiscated by the government.

WOMAN PUT BURGLAR TO ROUT

Finds Intruder in Bed-Chamber and Opens Fire With Revolver.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 10.—During a desperate encounter with a burglar who had entered her bed-chamber Mrs. Ella Hale shot and wounded the thief. Mrs. Hale was awakened by the burglar prowling in her room. She grappled with the man, but he seized her wrists and tore the rings from her fingers. She drew a revolver from beneath her pillow and opened fire on the thief, who escaped. Mrs. Hale followed the burglar to the street, emptying the contents of the revolver. He dropped the body at the first shot, which apparently took effect.

Women's Influence on Poets.

Great women poets may be few and far between, but sweep away all poems inspired by women and we should have but a sorry handful left. Where would be the liad? Where would be Dante's trilogy? Where would be the choicest poems of Shakespeare, and all the flock of amorous Elizabethans? Where would be the gems of our modern poets, Tennyson, Swinburne and Stephen Phillips?—Exchange.

Seeking Relief.

"When a woman gets palpitation of the tongue her husband generally finds that his business demands more of his time."—Tarrytown News.

HOUSEKEEPERS

Save Dollars in Fuel

YOU cannot afford to say to yourself, "My old stove will have to do this winter." The old stove is eating up the price of a new stove every year. Not only that, but on top of the cost is the unsatisfactory result it gives. It's always out the coldest morning. Stove makers generally admit that the FAVORITE is the finest baseburner made. With the FAVORITE BASE BURNER, the work of heating the home becomes a pleasure instead of a drudgery. You can buy

A FAVORITE BASE BURNER FROM $34.00 Up.

Our Guarantee

We will place this stove in your home for a whole winter on trial, that you may know just what it will do. Your money back if the Favorite does not do just as claimed.

We will guarantee to meet any first-class mail order house competition, quality considered. Mail orders promptly filled.
